

JAMES CAPPER

b. 1987, London, UK. Lives and works in London, UK.

James Capper makes mobile sculpture and sculptural tools for use in varied terrains, adopting the techniques, materials and complex problem-solving processes of engineering and invention. Taking inspiration from the organic world of natural history and evolution, Capper's approach consists of three distinct but interrelated processes - drawing, making sculpture and the application of the sculpture in action. His sculptural language evolves along different modular chains he terms 'Divisions' - a network of interrelated sculpture families each grouped according to specialised application. Varying in size from the handheld to the monumental, Capper's sculptures occupy their habitats like a system of machinic organisms, evolving and migrating from one ecosystem to another, their nomadic lives anchored in a distinct aesthetic iconography.
