

MARIE JACOTEY

b. 1988, Paris, FR. Lives and works in Marseille, FR.

In the work of Marie Jacotey we find extreme violence, rawness and brutality in combination with intimacy, sensuality, tenderness: a wild and exhilarating diary of images inspired by her friends, strangers, literature and popular culture. Working principally in drawing but in mixed media and scale - dry pastel on Japanese paper, coloured pencil on plaster, painted and digitally printed murals on large-scale velveteen fabric or animated short films – her tales of love, passion, loneliness and solitude are portrayed through a signature style of cinematic vignette. Jacotey works through clearly defined bodies of drawings, often without a structured narrative but consistent visual and thematic references. Common to each is a preoccupation with how relationships, those most intimate and cherished, shape not only the great stories of her heroines' lives but also affect their interior and exterior landscapes. Her world is one of humble ferocity, of intense feelings, memories and mistakes made. Jacotey has always sought out alliances in the worlds of architecture, fashion, poetry and other disciplines, and from these have come a consistent, collaborative strand of her practice.
