

NORMAN HYAMS

1966-2024. Lived and worked in London, UK.

Norman Hyams scrutinised everyday life through enigmatic and highly personal paintings and sculptures. Often working from singular photographs of his past that intrigued him, Hyams reworked them into a series of recurring motifs that dance the line between daydream and memory, a process he described as 'teaching himself how to see'. In each case a history is told, a narrative beckoned. His work contrasted the boisterous and nocturnal energy of the city with solemn and inward-looking scenes, evoking the intensity by which particular memories – both real and imagined – come to hold significant emotional resonance and meaning in our lives.
