

SHOLTO BLISSETT

b.1996, Salisbury, UK. Lives and works in London.

Sholto Blissett paints highly detailed imaginary landscapes inhabited by a variety of topographical, riverine and architectural forms. Growing up in a small village surrounded by the ancient sites of Stonehenge and Avebury stone circle, Blissett has a long-standing interest in the fictions societies create to understand their place in nature. His work, achieved through soft acrylic washes and the meticulous application of oil, centres on our relationship to the aesthetics of "Nature" and how our contemporary moment challenges the ways in which we have historically chosen to understand our place within the natural world. Evoking principles of surrealism and romanticism alongside renaissance painting styles such as capriccio and veduta, Blissett's work present us with a view of nature that folds cultural constructions of wilderness and the sublime into uncanny, dreamlike visions of our contemporary moment.
